Redefining the meaning of 'adventure'

To us, a story about 'adventure' doesn't have to take place out somewhere out in the wild... What is essential is a sense of discovery and an honest experience that doesn't shy away from recounting the good, bad, sad, romantic, funny, embarrassing, exhilarating things that happened - the whole picture.

You know that great travel story which was just left as a conversation between friends? We'd love to hear it...

What we would like from you

Tell us about yourself

- Where are you based?
- How do you make a living?
- What are you most passionate about?
- How has travel made an impact on your life?
- What camera do you use?

Tell us a story

TEXT

- 700-1500 words
- This could be in prose, poetry, diary entry, captions – take your pick
- If image placement is important to you, label them and reference in text (e.g. Insert image 1 here)
- Please provide in a word doc or as plain text format (not Pages)

IMAGES

- 10-20 images
- 1500px wide at 72dpi, as a .zip
- Please label them clearly (i.e. 1 - 10 or titles)

VIDEOS

- Any video content you may have to complement your story is a huge bonus. Whether you've used a professional camera or it's off the back of an iPhone, it will add a dimension to your story

Some thought starters

What was the plan, and how did that pan out in the end?

Did you come across anything unexpected?

Did you learn something new about yourself?

What advice would you give someone who was planning a similar trip?

What insights did you gain about the places, people, things you came across on your travels?

A person is sitting on a log by a campfire at night. The fire is bright and glowing, illuminating the person and the surrounding area. The background is dark, with some trees visible in the distance. The sky is a deep blue, suggesting twilight or early night.

That's enough from us,
it's time to let the pen do the talking.
We're looking forward to hearing from you.
